PRICE TWO CENTS

OFFICERS CHARGE MEN WITH GAMING

Affidavits Filed Against Bert and Paul Cox for Running A Gambling Game Saturday Night.

PLEAD GUILTY AND ARE FINED

Twenty Other Warrants Against the Alleged Players are Served and Others May Follow.

An affidavit was filed against Bert Cox and his brother, Paul Cox, Monday, upon the charge of running a gaming house. It is said that a number of men and boys congregated in Cox's soft drink stand, on West Second street, Saturday evening and gambled for several hours. The officers heard of the game, and made an investigation which resulted in the arrest of the Cox brothers. A hearing was given Monday evening and the trial for Bert Cox was set for Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

This morning, however, they signified their intention to plead guilty as charged and were brought before the mayor at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when the official record was made. Bert Cox was fined $35 and costs, amounting to $45, and his brother, Paul, was fined $10 and costs, which amounted to a total of $20.

Besides the affidavits for the Cox brothers, there are also affidavits on file for about twenty of the players who are said to have had a part in the game. Most of the affidavits against the players have been served, although a few of them cannot be found, and it is believed that they are keeping away from the police. The officers declare that they have the evidence which will be sufficient to prosecute all of the men who have been served with affidavits, and that they intend to bring all of them into court.

The fact that the Cox brothers plead guilty to the charge will make it rather difficult for the players who have been arrested to fight the case, and it is believed that the majority of them will enter a similar plea and pay the fines which are assessed.

City Marshall J. T. Abell found an agent selling fountain pens without a license this morning. The man was informed of the ordinance and he paid the fee without dispute.

MARRIED. KOCH-EASTER.

Otto E. Koch and Miss Katie Easter were married Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Easter, a few miles east of Seymour. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. Regan, of Azalia, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Koch will leave Friday for Oxford, Ind., where they will visit the groom's sister for a few days, and then will go on to Twin Falls, Ida., where they expect to make their future home. Mr. Koch has been in Idaho for about a year and is engaged in fruit growing in the Snake river valley. Both are well respected and industrious young people and they have the congratulations and best wishes of their friends.

NO AGREEMENT REACHED WITH ENGINEERS OF B. & O.

Representatives Unable to Come to Mutual Interpretation of Wage Contract.

After an extended conference yesterday between General Manager C. C. F. Bent and a committee representing the engineers employed on the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern it was announced that the effort to reach an agreement as to the proper interpretation of the existing wage contract had been unsuccessful, and that the engineers had declared their intention of taking the matter up with Vice-President G. L. Potter. This will be done within the next few days, and it is probable that the conference will be continued in Cincinnati. Mr. Potter, who is in charge of operation, will come here or send a personal representative and make a further effort to settle the dispute, which is merely a difference of opinion as to certain conditions and provisions of the agreement between the management and the engineers.

BENEFIT PROGRAMS.

Special Attractions at All Local Theaters Thursday Evening.

The proprietors of the Dreamland, the Nickelo and the Rustic Electric theaters have all kindly consented to give the proceeds from their respective shows on Thursday evening, of this week, to assist in defraying the expenses of the Fourth of July celebration and Military jubilee. Some of the most talented musicians in the city will be asked to assist in the special program on that evening and the members of the secret orders, who have the celebration in charge, will do the rest. The effort will be to make the entertainment equal to the best 10-cent shows given anywhere, but only the usual price of admission will be charged. It will be an evening of genuine entertainment and those at a distance, who are in the habit of spending an evening in Seymour now and then, cannot afford to miss it. The attendance at the three theaters on that evening ought to reach from 1,500 to 2,000 or more. This would be sufficient to add another free attraction for the celebration or to enable the committees to arrange a better parade and to improve upon their plans in other directions. Most of the attractions announced so far are expensive ones and nothing will be secured that the committee is not pretty well assured will be able to make good. Watch the columns of The Republican tomorrow and Thursday for announcement of the special features for Thursday evening, which all will want to hear.

HORSE FRIGHTENS AT AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. Caroline Otte Seriously Injured In Runaway Accident On Ross Street.

HIP AND SHOULDER FRACTURED

Woman Held to Bridle of Frightened Horse and Is Thrown to the Ground with Great Force.

Mrs. Caroline Otte, of White Creek, was seriously injured about noon today in a runaway accident, which occurred on Ross street, near the Ahlbrand carriage factory. Mrs. Otte was hitching the horse to a hitch-rack across the street from the factory, and it is believed that the animal became frightened at the starting of the engine in an automobile which was standing by the factory.

The owner of the machine drove here this morning from a surrounding town and had taken his machine to the factory to have a top made for it. He decided that he would drive the automobile into the display room, out of the sun, and as he left the building he noticed the horse which was driven by Mrs. Otte pass the machine, but the animal did not become frightened. The owner of the machine supposed that the horse had been driven down the street and did not notice that Mrs. Otte had stopped at the hitch-rack, about 100 feet away, when he started the engine.

At the first sound of the engine the animal sprang forward and started to run, but Mrs. Otte kept hold of the bridle. After running a few feet, it seems that the horse jumped, lifting the lady from her feet, and she fell on her right hip and shoulder, both of which were fractured.

She was brought to Dr. J. M. Shields' office in Voss' ambulance, and upon examination it was thought advisable to take her to her home, where her injuries will be given attention.

Mrs. Otte said that this was the first time her horse had ever become frightened at an automobile, and was surprised when he started to run away. A number of people who were near when the accident occurred said that the owner of the machine was in no way to blame for the accident, as the horse was some distance from the machine when it was started.

MEDORA AND VALLONIA PLAN BIG CELEBRATION FOR FOURTH

Thomas M. Honan to Make Principal Address at Picnic Grounds, Near Heighon Hill.

Medora and Vallonia will celebrate Independence Day on Saturday, July 2, in order that their celebration and the Military jubilee to be held here on July Fourth and fifth, will not conflict. Their picnic will be held at Smith's grove, one-half mile east of Heighon hill and about midway between Vallonia and Medora. The grove is located on the west side of White river. The principal address will be made by the Hon. Thomas M. Honan, of this city, speaker of the Indiana House of Representatives. Mr. Honan is an entertaining speaker and no doubt will make an address that will be pleasing to all who hear him. Other good speakers are also being secured and there will be several interesting number of a different nature on the program.

The Medora band will assist in furnishing music for the occasion. There will be refreshments of every kind on the ground and the names of those who have the picnic in charge is evidence that special effort will be made to see that there is no disorderly conduct on the ground.

Traction Car Breaks Record From Louisville to Indianapolis.

Traction records on the Indianapolis and Louisville and Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern Traction lines were broken again Saturday evening by a special running from Louisville to Indianapolis. Regarding the trip the Columbus Republican has the following:

The record for traction cars between Louisville and Indianapolis was broken Saturday night when the Uivieri concert band was hurried to Indianapolis to catch a train for Chicago so that an engagement could be filled there Sunday.

The special car, No. 111, left the terminal station in Louisville at 11:14 o'clock Saturday night and unloaded the band men at Maryland and Delaware streets, in Indianapolis at 2:14 o'clock Sunday morning, making the run in exactly three hours. The band was thus sent from Louisville to Chicago in 8 hours and 26 minutes, while the best regular schedule between Louisville and Chicago for the steam roads is 10 hours and 30 minutes. The fastest time on the trip was from Seymour to Indianapolis, the running time being 1 hour and 31 minutes. From Seymour to Indianapolis L. M. Brown, trainmaster of the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern, and C. V. Salsburg, the local company's dispatcher, had charge of the car. The former acted as conductor and the latter as motorman.

MERGER OF B. & O. AND B. & O. S-W.

Main Officers of the Company Will Be Transferred to Baltimore at Once.

CHANGE HAS BEEN EXPECTED

This Will Become Southwestern Division of B. & O.—Independent Operation Abandoned.

For sometime there have been a number of rumors concerning the merger of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railroads, but nothing definite could be learned about the proposed consolidation. It is now known that the proposed change has been made, concerning which the Cincinnati Enquirer says:

A consolidation in fact, as well as in name, of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern has been effected, the final details having been completed yesterday, and an official announcement will be made within the next few days. This means that Cincinnati will lose the general offices of one of its present initial lines, as many of the offices will be moved to Baltimore, while others will be abolished. It is said that practically the only representatives of the operating department that will be continued here will be the general superintendent. The office of General Passenger Agent O. P. McCarty will not be affected, and his entire department will be kept intact, his jurisdiction remaining the same as heretofore.

This move has been expected for several years, and particularly since President Willard took command there have been frequent rumors that there would soon be a literal consolidation under one direct management. It is planned that the present Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern shall become the southwestern division of the Baltimore & Ohio, the independent operation and management which has existed for several years to be abandoned. This plan, which has been definitely decided upon, will abolish a number of important offices, chief among which is that of general manager. The direct operating management will be vested in the general superintendent, and it is said these duties will devolve upon the present incumbent, W. H. Brimmon. He will take up the work of the general manager, with practically the same jurisdiction.

With the abolition of his office, C. C. F. Bent, general manager, who is recognized as one of the foremost operating officials in the country, will be transferred to one of the most important positions on the Baltimore & Ohio system. He will be made general manager of the New York terminals and the Staten Island railroad.

Like the general passenger department, it is understood there will be no change in the general freight department, the offices being retained in Cincinnati. However, it is the plan to have both General Passenger Agent McCarty and General Freight Agent S. T. McLaughlin report direct to C. S. Wright, general traffic manager of the Baltimore & Ohio at Baltimore.

The actual consolidation has long been desired, but no previous effort was ever made to bring it about because the laws of both Indiana and Illinois, through which the B. & O. S-W. operates, would not admit of it. However, it is said that President

Willard has blazed the way for his legal department to discover a method by which the legal obstacles could be removed, and it was upon his initiative that the desired purpose has been accomplished.

Details of the plans have not yet been made public, and until this is done it will not be known to just what extent Cincinnati will suffer in the matter of the loss of officials and employees.

INJURED BY EXPLOSION OF LUBRICATING GLASS

E. Hooper, of This City Meets With Painful Accident in Railroad Yards at Washington.

E. Hooper, of this city, an engineer on the B. & O. S-W. railroad, was painfully burned Sunday by the explosion of a lubricating glass. He was working on his engine in the yards at Washington preparatory for making a run east when the accident occurred.

When the glass exploded the hot oil was thrown on his face, causing a painful but not a serious injury. His cap was pulled down over his eyes and none of the oil struck his eyes.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Eugene Williams, of Crothersville, and Hall Power, John Robbins and Harry Reed, of Seymour, went to Georgia, seven miles southwest of Mitchell, Monday to cut and haul timber for the Enterprise Lumber Company. The timber is mostly white oak and will be shipped to the company's mill here. Forty-eight miles is a long distance to ship logs but is a short distance when compared with the distance that walnut logs have to travel when they are shipped from here to the old country to be made into lumber.

NAMES THAT ARE MISLEADING.

"Dutch" Clocks Are German—Brier Root Pipes Are Heather.

A vast number of incorrect notions are acquired by reason of misleading names; but, after all, is it of any particular importance, so long as we get what we are after? For instance, we go into a store and ask for a Dutch clock, the Los Angeles Herald says. We get a clock, the kind we are after, so it does not really matter that it is not a Dutch clock at all, but a German manufacture. Practically all the wooden clocks called Dutch are made at the village of Freyburg, in the Black forest. It is all due to mispronunciation; "Deutsch" in German means "German."

Nothing is more natural than to assume that India ink comes from India; but it does not, and never did, any more than did India rubber. The first originated in and comes from China and should be called Chinese ink, as it is in France, and the latter comes from Central and South America.

"Let's have an old-style country dance!" some one exclaims, and immediately there jump into the mind visions of red-cheeked lassies and stout lads dancing gayly in the barn. The term, however, is simply a corruption of "contra dance," from the Latin contra, or opposite, and means a dance in which the partners are arranged in opposite lines, and has nothing to do with the country.

Camel's hair brushes are not made from the hair of camels, but from hairs from the tails of Russian and Siberian squirrels. The hair of camels, however, used for making fine fabrics, such as shawls, rugs and underclothing, and is sometimes mixed with silk.

"Genuine French brier-root pipes" are not made from the roots of brier, but from the root of a white heath which reaches a considerable size and is cultivated in the south of France for pipe-making purposes. The name is derived from the French bryere, the dialect form of which is briere, meaning heath.

We have a firmly fixed notion that a centipede has a hundred feet and naturally; but we are misled by the name. Count 'em. There are about thirty feet on the largest size.

We remark that such a one "speaks through his nose," when, as a matter of fact, the queer disagreeable tone is produced when the nasal passage is closed. Hold the nostrils and prove it.

DEAF TELEGRAPH OPERATOR.

Maine Man Takes Messages by the Sense of Sight or of Touch.

Peter A. Foley of Portland, Me., is a telegraph operator, though totally deaf.

Since he became deaf, however, he has developed so wonderfully the senses of touch and of sight that he can detect the finest movements of the instrument and correctly interpret them.

According to the Railway Man's Magazine, his nervous system is a part and parcel of telegraphy, and by the sense of touch in his finger tips he takes messages transmitted from the ends of the continent.

He can also read a message by watching the sounder. With his left forefinger placed lightly on the sounder he can by his wonderful sense of touch take a message as accurately as any man in the office.

He insists that he needs no more consideration than any operator, for he can read the fastest transmitting without the slightest difficulty, and his record of mistakes in a year is said to be smaller than that of any other operator in the office.

Mr. Foley's hearing began to fail rapidly eight years ago. He was then considered the best operator in the Portland office and every effort was made to help him. The manager of the office arranged the receiver so it would make a louder tick, but in a short time he was unable to hear even this.

There appeared no alternative but failure. No operator in the world had been able to work after he had lost his hearing. The manager didn't wish to send a good man away, so he was set to doing common work at the same salary he had received as an operator.

One day he announced that he would soon be able to go back to his old position. The manager was surprised. That a deaf man could be a telegraph operator was too much to credit, but Mr. Foley was able to prove that he could do it.

THE PINK DINNER-SET.

The Honest Giver Acknowledged Her Habitual Failing.

"Well, Harriet Marshall, of all happy fortunes to meet you here!"

Harriet Marshall turned at the greeting. She was a tall, fine-looking woman of fifty, with the bearing of one used to command, but her expression as she faced her friend was oddly at variance with her authoritative manner. Its nearest prototype was the small boy caught in a piece of mischief by some older person of whose sympathetic understanding he was indeed sure, only—he would have preferred not to be caught.

The friend, mischievous and disconcertingly quick-witted, laughed outright. "You want to get rid of me and you can't," she declared. "I'm going to dog your footsteps. When I haven't had a glimpse of you for two months, do you suppose I'm going to let a mere little

On Brimstone Creek.

A young preacher in a wild mountain region, several years ago, improved what he counted a favorable opportunity for the delivery of a temperance sermon, which he preached in several of the log schoolhouses in his circuit.

The sermon was received with manifest disfavor in a number of the places where it was preached, and on Brimstone Creek there was something of a demonstration of hostility.

It was in the midst of a heated political campaign, with candidates riding about with saddlebags filled with flasks of moonshine whisky, and many men who were ordinarily sober had accepted the free hospitality of the politicians. Against this practice the young preacher's words were unsparring, and he angered both the candidates and the men who had partaken of their liquor.

As he mounted his horse at the close of the service, he saw about him angry faces, some of them still bloated with the liquor he had been denouncing, for one or two candidates had seized upon the meeting as a good time to be present and see a number of men together.

Down the creek the young preacher rode, fording the stream every mile or two, as the narrow valley crowded the rough road first to one side of the creek and then to the other, and feeling as he rode the depression of reaction and of manifest lack of approval on the part of his congregation.

A few days afterward he received a message in the roundabout manner of the region—a message emanating from no one and delivered by no one—in forming him that if he ever preached again on Brimstone Creek, he would be tied to a tree and whipped.

Once a month, on the third Sunday, was the time of his Brimstone appointment, and there was time for some quiet inquiry, which confirmed the young preacher's suspicion as to the leader of the gang that intended to whip him.

Somewhat earlier than usual on the morning of the third Sunday of the next month he rode up Brimstone, and made a detour to take him past the house of his leading enemy.

"Hello!" he shouted at the fence. The master of the house came to the door, called off the dogs, and made a surly response.

"Are you going to meeting to-day?" asked the preacher.

"Don't know. Like as not I will and like as not I won't."

"Well, I rode round this way to say that I will stop in and take dinner with you to-day. I hope you will come. I'll ride back with you."

"I don't hardly reckon I'll git thar," said the mountaineer. "One of the chaps was sick all night, and he's mighty triffin' this mornin'."

"Let me see him," said the minister, who carried with him a few simple remedies.

After an examination of the sick child, he said to the mother, "Here, give him this once an hour, and I think he will be better by the time we get back to dinner."

The anxious mother was instantly grateful, and even the father was mollified a little.

"If you'll wait till I git my saddle on, I'll ride to meetin' with you," said he.

The sermon that day gave better satisfaction. There was a certain prejudice to overcome, but partly it was overcome already in admiration of the young man's courage, and in astonishment that he rode in under protection of his recent enemy.

Of course there was no attempt at whipping, and at the close of the service many greeted the young man with sheepish cordiality.

When they returned to the house the little boy had improved, and the preacher sat down to a good dinner of hot biscuit and fried chicken, the food of preachers in that region, and at the close of the meal he rode off in safety.

There was a meeting in the schoolhouse a few days afterward, and a letter was written, not without great labor, and sent to the young preacher. Not very long ago, in an overhauling of old papers, that letter came to light.

"We want you keep on preaching on brimstone," it said, "and as peter seed to Christ though all forsake you yet will not wee, but we think it would be well to preach the gospel insted of temprance and for the prsint give us something mor cimple."

The spelling of the word "simple" was not quite beyond reproach, but the Brimstone appointment continued.—Youth's Companion.

Herein Is Love.

"Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins."—I. John 4:10.

The love that gave the Well-beloved is not past love. The cross of Christ is not the high mark of a great love that once swept and surged about the world. It is the measure of the abiding love that ever holds us dear, the love that concerns itself about our every little care, and counts the common want a sacred thing to which he hath a joy in ministering. Like the joy of a mother in ministering to her child.—Rev. Mark Guy Pearse.

CRATER LAKES OF MEXICO.

Peaceful La Alberca and Zintora in the State of Guanajuato.

Mexico, with all her romance, has never given abroad any description of her crater lakes. Valle de Santiago, a little town of the state of Guanajuato, boasts four of the most perfect and beautiful of such lakes.

The village nestles among eleven craters. In the old days the town, which is an ancient one, was called the Town of the Seven Candles, for the seven craters which surround it. The eleven craters mentioned by scientists are not well defined, some having come up within the others at later periods, resulting in but seven well-defined hills.

The four craters which contain the lakes are all within a few miles of the city, but two, La Alberca and Zintora, are within easy walking distance, says the Mexican Herald. La Alberca is one of the lowest of the craters, and on one side a portion of the crater wall has fallen away so that the approach is very easy.

Half a mile across is the low line of the crater wall and down below it is the greenest of lakes, calm as a plate of glass. The tiny boat which plies the lake is on the opposite side, close below the walls of basalt which rim it. These walls, which rise nearly a hundred feet above the surface of the lake, are part of the native rock, which was blown off like the cork of a bottle when the crater was formed. It rises sheer and erect above the lake on every side.

The other crater lake which one can visit conveniently is the Zintora, which is approached after a long climb up its side; the lake glistens deep at the bottom with sloping sides covered with green leading down to it. A tiny beach of sand is seen on one side, and on this a ruined mountain hut brings another Swiss touch to the scene. A background of a towering peak, one of the Seven Candles, rises a short distance away, and in the great hollow of the crater crowds of hundreds can be lost and not a murmur but the echo of one's voice from across the crater, nearly a mile away, is heard.

The calm restfulness of a crater lake is unlike anything else in the world. One finds lakes and solitary pools in forests or mountain fastnesses, and the calm there is akin to witchery, but they are stirred sometimes by passing breezes and the trees will wave above in the wind. But in a crater lake there is not a breath that will stir it, and even a stone cast into its bosom creates ripples that seem as though they would be swallowed ere they are born. Peace is a word without a meaning until one lies silent on the slope of such a crater with such a lake at his feet.

Within His Gates.

It is often hard for a busy man to practice what he preaches. This is not because of hypocrisy so much as because of thoughtlessness. The story is told by the National Magazine of a noted minister in Washington who one day learned a lesson from one of his own sermons. He had been urging his flock to give a hearty welcome to the stranger within the gates, not forgetting to maintain a proper interest in their own households. After the service he went to the door as usual and began to shake hands with the people passing out.

He was much interested in a well dressed and intelligent-looking young girl, apparently a stranger, and greeted her heartily.

"I hope we may see you often here," he said. "We always have a warm welcome for new faces."

"Thank you, sir," she replied modestly.

"Do you live hereabout?" he went on.

The girl looked at him with a puzzled smile. "Yes, sir, I do."

"Will you kindly leave me your address, and my wife and I will call on you some evening," he said.

"You would not have to go far to find me—I am your cook."

Promoting Economy.

"I'm afraid I won't be able to pay your bill for some time, doctor," said the grateful patient.

"H'm," replied the physician, who is a natural diplomat, "there are two points I forgot to mention in my advice. You'd better quit smoking and cut out a meat diet."—Washington Star.

Nothing Lost.

"You can't beat system."

"How now?"

"I understand the traction interests throughout the country get a profit from melting down the lead money taken in."—Washington Herald.

When a woman refuses to remove her hat in a theater it's a safe bet that her husband doesn't cut much ice at home.

Women are called clever for doing things which if done by men would brand them as fools.

RAM'S HORN BLASTS.

Warning Notes Calling the Wicked to Repentance.

It would puzzle Solomon to make out why an extra bright woman so often marries a man as dull as a boy's hoe.

There are better places for a man to make a fool of himself than by pitching into a conductor for doing his duty on a street car.

Self-conceit is the twin sister of vanity.

The man who cannot laugh does not know what it means to live.

It doesn't make a lie look any whiter to put it on a tombstone.

It is the nails that hold up the meeting house—not the steeple.

The man who has no faith in himself will never bring anything to pass.

The sin that seems to pay the best is the one that gets to stay the longest.

Nothing in the world has done any more to help the fool-killer earn his salary than self-conceit.

When you are moved to do a good deed with no selfish motive, God is knocking at your door.

Our getting to heaven is going to depend a good deal on what we do to help somebody else get there.

Nothing can make a crooked man feel so much like a ramrod as marching behind a round-shouldered pilgrim in a procession.

A PLANT PIONEER.

The kinnikinnic is a plant pioneer. Often it is the first plant to make a settlement or establish a colony on a barren or burned-over area. It is hardy, and is able to make a start and thrive in places so inhospitable as to afford most plants not the slightest foothold. Enos A. Mills, in "Wild Life on the Rockies," tells of the beneficial work which this plant does; it often opens the way for the growth of a flourishing forest.

The kinnikinnic, or Arctostaphylos Uva-ursi, as the botanists name it, may be called a ground-loving vine. Although always attractive, it is in winter that it is at its best. Then its bright green leaves and red berries shine among the snow-flowers in a quiet way that is strikingly beautiful.

Once kinnikinnic has made a start it is constantly assisted to succeed by its own growing success. Its arms catch and hold snow and this gives a supply of much needed water. This water is snugly stored beneath the plant, where but little can be reached or taken by the sun or the thirsty winds. The winds, too, bring something to it—dust, powdered earth, trash, the remains of dead insects; some of this material is carried for miles. All goes to form new soil, or to fertilize or mulch the old. The soil bed grows deeper and richer, and is also constantly outbuilding and enlarging.

In a few years a small oasis is formed in, or rather on, the barren. This becomes a place of refuge for seed-wanderers, in fact, a nursery. There are millions of acres now almost desert that may some time be changed and beautified by this cheerful plant. Some time many bald and barren places in the Rockies will be plumed with pines, bannered with flowers, have brooks, butterflies and singing birds, all of these because of the reclaiming work which will be done by charming kinnikinnic.

Filipino Justice.

Justice tempered by mercy is a praiseworthy thing. But this story, related by an ex-supervisor of education in the Philippines, goes to prove that common sense is quite as desirable an accompaniment of the justice dispensed by the local magistrate of our island possessions. This is the tale:

I came home one day just in time to see a thief climbing out the window with the better part of my wardrobe. I gave chase so earnestly that the thief finally dropped the clothes in the street and disappeared. As I gathered up my belongings a native policeman came along and insisted on arresting me. He took me before a Filipino judge, where I told my story very plainly and emphatically.

When I had finished, the judge said, "You are dismissed, but you may leave the clothes here."

"But why?" I insisted, angrily.

"Because," said he, with sage deliberation, "how can I tell that you speak the truth? When the thief comes back to identify these clothes as the ones he stole, you may have them."

An Eye to Business.

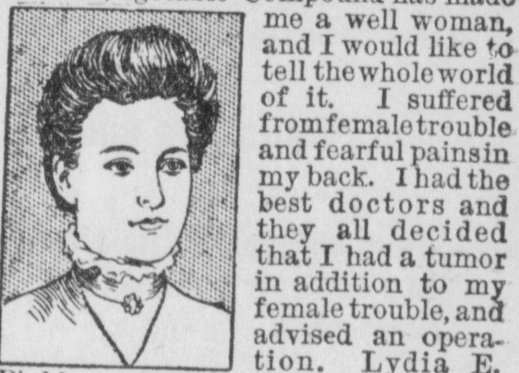

Mr. H. G. Wells, the novelist, tells a story of a gentleman next to whom he once sat at a public dinner. The conversation had turned upon one of his own books and Mr. Wells had said something to the effect that "were there no self-seekers the world would be a very Utopia." This neighbor promptly observed: "I maintain that all water used for drinking and culinary purposes should be boiled at least an hour." "You are a physician, I presume," suggested the novelist. "No, sir," was the unexpected reply, "I am in the coal line."—The Standard.

When a man becomes unfortunate his fair-weather friends think they have done their duty when they say: "Ain't it a shame!"

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — Mrs. Emma Imse, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

The Orang-Outang's Nest.

For the first time Londoners have now and opportunity of seeing an orang-outang in its "nest," or sleeping platform. Dr. Charles Hose having recently presented to the national museum a fine adult male of this Bornean ape, together with a specklen of the nest.

Dr. A. Russel Wallace in his "Malay Archipelago" states that orang-outangs build their sleeping platforms comparatively low down on relatively small trees at a height of from twenty to fifty feet above the ground, probably for the reason that such a situation is warmer and less exposed to wind than one higher up. According to Dyak report, each orang builds a fresh platform every night, but this, as Dr. Wallace remarks, is improbable on account of the relatively small number of these structures to be met with. It may be added that the large amount of materials in the nest in the British Museum affords further evidence of the same kind. Photographs are extant showing three or four orangs' nests in a single tree.—The Field.

GETTING INTO HARNESS

Colonel Roosevelt Buckles Down to Editorial Work.

New York, June 21.—Between seeing his son married, getting his high hat pressed and visiting his publishers, and sizing up the work left on his desk at the Outlook office, Colonel Roosevelt put in a busy day Monday. When the colonel went to the Outlook office he greeted Dr. Abbott and looked over his correspondence. There is plenty of work at the office, and he will tackle it tomorrow.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Congress Will Be Ready to Adjourn This Week.

PROGRAM ABOUT COMPLETED

Despite Forebodings Expressed in Many Quarters a Month Ago, Congress Has Finally Got Together and the Big Administration Measures Are Out of the Way and Adjournment Is Expected Before Saturday.

Washington, June 20.—Although no hard and fast agreement has been reported, it is practically certain that congress will adjourn before next Saturday. Some of the senate and house optimists think that Thursday would be a good guess, but others say Saturday. Acting on these suggestions, many of the rank and file of the house have made Pullman reservations for the end of the week. Everybody in the lower branch of congress seems anxious to get back home and find out how the dear people feel about things.

A good many men in congress who a month or two ago went around moaning to themselves that administration policies were doomed, that all administration bills would fail of passage and that the good old G. O. P. was on the toboggan have awakened in the past week to the fact that they rang the alarm too soon. The railroad bill and the statehood measure are out of the way, the postal savings bank bill in the form in which it passed the house will get by the senate today, and the conservation bill, with a compromise $20,000,000 reclamation bond proposition tacked on it, will go through with a whiz. So, barring a lot of routine, the slate is pretty near clear. Mr. Taft has publicly gone on record in favor of the bill for the publicity of campaign contributions which has passed the house. His wishes, together with the public clamor for the enactment of this legislation, will very likely result in favorable action by the senate upon it. There is some talk in that body of reporting out the house bill with an amendment making the publicity of campaign contributions effective after election and not ten days before, as the bill provides. The anti-injunction measure, another Taft bill, will go over until the next session. Mr. Taft told senate and house leaders a couple of weeks ago to push along the other measures enumerated and let this lie over. There are still a number of bills in conference, including the sundry civil bill, but it is admitted that with an adjournment date agreed on there will be no trouble in closing up these bills in short order. The public building bill was taken up in the house today and will be passed before the body adjourns for the day. This will leave everything in good shape in the house, and it is expected that by the middle of the week some definite agreement on adjournment date will be reached.

Preacher Used a Knife.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 20.—The Rev. D. R. Alexander probably fatally stabbed J. W. Thomas, a saloon keeper at Godfrey, W. Va. The preacher is said to have accused Thomas of improper relations with a member of his congregation. Thomas was slashed four times. Alexander was lodged in jail.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The Indiana Democratic Editorial association will hold its summer meeting at French Lick on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Senator Beveridge and President Taft are scheduled to speak at the Winona Bible conference at Winona Lake, Aug. 29 and 30, respectively.

A demonstration against the government of a semi-revolutionary character is reported from San Pedro and other towns in the tobacco district of Honduras.

Congress has increased the appropriation for raising or removing the wreck of the battleship Maine from the harbor of Havana from $100,000 to $300,000.

A fast train on the Illinois Central road struck a bus load of Chicago picknickers returning from a day's outing, killing two of the party and injuring several.

An emigrant train on the O. & W. collided with a light engine at Parker, N. Y., and three passengers were killed and twenty-five injured, six of the latter seriously.

Senator Beveridge and Governor Marshall will address the convention of the Indiana State Federation of Labor, which will be held in Lafayette, Sept. 27, 28 and 29.

The statehood bill, granting statehood to both Arizona and New Mexico, having passed both houses of congress, now only awaits the president's signature to become a law.

There are 754,972 children of school age in Indiana, a gain over last year of 5,668, according to the enumeration figures received from the office of the superintendent of public instruction.

William and Alfred Greenwood, aged twelve and ten, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., while on their way to Sunday school, stopped to play on the railway tracks, when they were struck by an express train and killed.

AN AERIAL FLEET TO ATTACK BATTLESHIP

Proposed Try-Out of Latest Problem In Warfare.

New York, June 21.—Atlantic City is all prepared to outdo the entire universe one better in up-to-date matters by holding a sham battle of airships during the coming "Over the Ocean" aviation week. The Atlantic City Aero club has sent an application to the powers at Washington asking for a ship to shoot up an airship fleet, which the club hopes will be directed by Aviators Curtiss, Hamilton and Brookins, the last named a pupil of the Wrights who has been doing great stunts with aeroplanes in Indianapolis.

The Atlantic City club wants the navy department to place a warship off Young's pier during the airship week, and they have made rules whereby each airship pilot will be supplied with three bags of sand stamped with a mark assigned to each aviator. An attempt will be made to drop one of the sandbags, supposing it to be a high power explosive, upon the battleship deck from an aeroplane. The sandbag, of course, is supposed to contain enough destructive powder to transfer the sea-fighter from surface service to the fleet of Admiral McGinty, and therefore out of terrestrial business.

A prize of $1,000 will be awarded the first aeronaut who succeeds in dropping one of the sandbags on the battleship deck. As a method of defense three-inch rapid-fire guns, fitted with telescope cameras fastened to the barrels of the guns and adjusted so that the firing of the gun will snap the shutter of the camera and take a picture showing that the center of the shell would strike had not blank cartridges been used on the battleship, is the Aero club's idea of counting the score of hits. The cameras on the airship also are supposed to settle the question if the aeroplane was hit and wrecked before the sandbags sank the battleship. Supposing the score shows that the battleship wrecks the aeroplane fleet first, the $1,000 prize is to go to the crew of the ship, or, if the navy department does not like this idea, the money will be devoted to some benefit arrangement for the crew.

Feared He Would Be Robbed.

Indianapolis, June 21.—Believing he was about to be robbed, Antone Mallabara, sixty-five years old, shot John Roush about 11 o'clock last night in his room at 1619 South Meridian street. Both men roomed at the house.

WIRELESS FOR GLIDDEN TOUR

Chalmers Automobiles to be Equipped with New Invention.

DeForest Sparkless System Proves Successful in New York Tests.

Chalmers "30" in Wireless Communication with the Garage.

ONE of the greatest events each year in the automobile world is the famous Glidden Tour, the annual reliability run of the American Automobile Association. There have been six previous contests, the winners of which have all been awarded the Glidden Trophy, a perpetual challenge prize presented by Mr. Charles J. Glidden, after whom the event takes its name.

The route this year extends 3,000 miles through the South, Southwest and Middle West, starting at Cincinnati and returning to Chicago.

The Chalmers "30" was chosen by the contest board as official pathfinder for the tour, so that two of these cars will serve as pilot cars for the run, besides the two "30's" entered as contestants for the trophy.

Last year Jean Bemb won the Pony Tonneau Trophy with a Chalmers "40" and it will probably be this type of car which the company will equip for wireless news service in its plan of always being in the fore-front of progress.

Mr. W. E. Barton, of the Carl H. Page Company, has been quietly carrying on, in New York and New Jersey, exhaustive tests of the new DeForest "sparkless" wireless apparatus with uniform success.

Wireless Telephone Successful.

These tests have included both the wireless telegraph and wireless telephone, and while it is planned to eventually supersede the wireless telegraph with the wireless telephone, doing away with the necessity of carrying an operator, every chauffeur operating his own apparatus by merely speaking into the transmitter, the wireless telephone tests have not yet been sufficiently exhaustive to guarantee its use during this next tour, although very satisfactory results have been obtained in communication from a moving car a distance of four miles.

Portable Apparatus.

In the early part of March, successful "radiote" telegraph tests were made between a Chalmers car in Central Park, New York, and the old Terminal Building at Park Avenue and 42nd Street, where Dr. DeForest maintains his experimental laboratory. The distance involved varied from one and one-half to three miles in the trial from a moving car, while the experiments with the portable field stations showed that this type of apparatus at least would be able to carry on certain communication up to 50 miles, as the field station was able to keep in communication without any trouble with the Metropolitan and Manhattan Life Towers and Dr. DeForest's factory station at Newark, N. J., and later on from the New Jersey highways near Trenton to the "sparkless" wireless station on the Land Title Building at Philadelphia, over 30 miles away. The complete equipment weighed less than 200 pounds.

The New System.

By the old spark method of wireless telegraphy, which is in general use on the ships a miniature thunder storm is set in motion by the apparatus, which requires tremendous power. By the new sparkless system the loud and dangerous spark is done away with, and the same amount of work is done with about one-fifth of the power. By the old system a heavy generating apparatus was necessary, which made it impossible to carry it in an automobile. The new apparatus can derive all the power necessary from the ordinary storage batteries.

The latest in the big fight situation is the report that the governor of Nevada will follow the example of Governor Gillett of California and will prevent the holding of the fight either in Reno or Goldfield.

Wheat and corn in all sections of Nebraska are suffering for rain, and the situation is critical. Little rain has fallen in Nebraska for a month and rivers are drying up all through the agricultural sections.

The senate has passed the resolution reported from the committee on elections directing an inquiry into the charges of bribery made about the election of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois.

MANY THINGS TO HOLD ATTENTION

Municipal League of Indiana
In Session This Week.

NOT A DULL MOMENT ALLOWED

With a Program Meaty With Points of Vital Interest to Town Governments and With Speakers Prepared to Give Their Very Best Thought to the Problems Presented, the Meeting Promises Much of Profit.

Richmond, Ind., June 21.—That the Municipal League of Indiana is an organization with a definite purpose in view—to educate public officers better in the needs of municipalities and to point out the ways and means of acquiring these needs—probably will be more forcefully demonstrated at the league's annual convention in this city this week than ever before. The opinion has prevailed among some citizens that the annual pilgrimages of city and town officers was something in the nature of a good time, with little attention given to municipal study.

Richmond hopes to give the public officers of more than 200 cities and towns in Indiana a real-for-sure good time this week, but it is expecting in return to see a dignified and intelligent body of men striving with problems that have vexed both public officers and citizens for many years. There certainly is enough "meat" in the program prepared for the convention which opened today to give the delegates all they can desire in the way of business, and the city government, the Commercial club and other organizations have done their part in providing entertainment.

Two hundred delegates are expected to attend the convention, and as these men will represent directly the citizens of their respective cities and towns, the actual work of the convention will have considerable importance. Joseph T. McNary of Logansport is president of the league. Mayor Zimmerman welcomed the league members at the opening session this afternoon, and business began without further ceremony. The program for Wednesday and for Thursday is filled with good and timely subjects and there is promise of few dull moments during the three days. On Wednesday evening the Commercial club will give a banquet to the league members. There is some prospect that the league, in its consideration of the cities and towns law, will not be slow in pointing out some of the alleged defects, and it is more than likely that the legislative committee will have some duties to perform in the way of mapping out some proposed amendments for the general assembly to consider next winter. Special interest is being shown in the address on Wednesday of W. A. Dehority, state examiner, who will discuss some of the features of the public accounting law now being tried out in Indiana.

BIG HAIL STORM

Great Destruction Caused in Petersburg District.

Petersburg, Ind., June 21.—This section of southern Indiana has been visited by the worst hailstorm in its history, the hail following a cloudburst. It destroyed many fields of grain. Practically every window in the town of Algiers was destroyed. Cattle were wounded, but no fatalities were reported. Hailstones five inches in circumference fell and hundreds of chickens were killed. Growing wheat and corn were beaten to the earth and the blades shredded. The wheat and oats crops are practically ruined, the damage estimated at $100,000.

Spanish Veterans to Meet.

Richmond, Ind., June 21.—Frank C. Kibbey of this city, state commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, is at work on the program for the seventh annual encampment of the organization, which will be held here next week, beginning Monday evening. In addition to representatives from every camp in the state, all of the department officers will attend and plans are under way to entertain the visitors handsomely.

How He Settled Quarrel.

Newcastle, Ind., June 21.—Charles Conner, aged thirty-five, of Mt. Summit, after a family quarrel, blew the top of his head off with a shotgun. Conner and his wife had disagreed and she had left with two of her four children for the home of her parents. Conner then took the other two children to relatives and, returning home, ended his life.

Prison For Stealing Preserves.

Shelbyville, Ind., June 21.—Michael McNarry, Jacksonsville, arrested in Homer charged with stealing a can of fish and preserves from the home of William Keppel, near Ray's Crossing, was sentenced from one to fourteen years in prison.

A Boy's Revenge.

Muncie, Ind., June 21.—Because Frederick Shultz, aged twelve, wished to "get even" with his playmate, Jim Cooper, he set fire to the barn of the Cooper boy's father. He has been sent to the Indiana boys' school at Plainfield.

THE PULLMAN PEOPLE MUST REDUCE RATES

Interstate Commerce Commission Remains Firm.

Washington, June 21.—The interstate commerce commission has denied the application of the Pullman Car company to postpone the date on which the commission's order requiring the company to lower its rates shall become effective. The order, therefore, will become operative and the rates will go into effect on July 1. Judge Grosscup of the federal court in Chicago having already declined to grant an injunction restraining the commission. The reductions which the company will make, however, will not be general, but will merely affect the rates covered in the committee's original order from Chicago and St. Paul to Seattle and western points.

The commission has decided to grant the company a rehearing, as they claim to have new evidence which will convince the commission that they are not charging too great a rate at present. The rehearing will not be for some time, however.

Caught at the Crossing.

Youngstown, O., June 20.—Lewis Stahl, forty-five years old, and his wife, Elizabeth Stahl, aged forty-one, were instantly killed by an eastbound Pennsylvania passenger train near Niles, Sunday. They were on their way to church in a covered buggy, which was struck by the train at an open crossing. Their daughter Elizabeth, seventeen years old, suffered a broken leg. The horses escaped injury.

An Amateur's Good Work.

London, June 21.—Armstrong Drexel, a son of Anthony Drexel of Philadelphia made a record high flight in an ascent in a Bleriot monoplane at Brockenhurst. He reached a height of 1,070 feet, which is the record in England.

THE MIRACLE.

She's but a little colleen gay,
Sourer thicker than me thumb.
But oh, the word she spoke the day!
"The blind I am, and dumb."
Her small mouth had a pleading twist
As though 'twas wishful to be kissed;
I thought it gave the true word whist,
And hope left in the heart of me.

But when I tried it—oh, the blow
The little hand laid on me cheek!
'Twas but a feather's weight, I know,
But sure, it left me faint and weak.
And oh, the look that changed her eyes!
'Twas like the change of Erin's skies
From shine to storm—the black surprise
And sorrow burst the heart of me.

She stood there lashing me bold ways—
So weak the gentle tongue of her,
Compared with some I've got 'twas praise—
Then somethin' sudden, seemed to stir
Within me breast. The truth it left Straight out, belike as it had slept;
Then—right into me arms she crept.
Sure, joy's near crazed the heart of me.
—Harper's Weekly.

The Pledge of the Poor

The little old father seemed very dear to Margaret, who was watching him as he wrote his records rapidly in his small, cramped hand. It was all or nearly all, that he wrote. Long ago he had given up hope of the book which was to have been his life work, and buried it deep beneath a country physician's responsibilities. Margaret had always resented this. What right had these people to his life, who scarcely accorded him a living?

"Father," she said, suddenly, "what are you writing?"

He held the page with his forefinger, as he met her cold gray eyes with a pair startlingly like them. Then he smiled, and two wrinkles disappeared from his forehead, and two appeared about his mouth.

"Just visits, dear, to pay—and to be paid for," he answered.

"There are many more of the first than of the last, aren't there?"

"Why, surely."

He smiled as he said it, but Margaret did not smile. So it had always been, so it would always be—four to pay and one to be paid for. And they needed many things. No one knew that better than Margaret. Much responsibility devolved on her. The little half-invalid mother must not know, the children could not, the father did not. But Margaret had a complete understanding of the lease of life accorded boyish boots, of the wants, wishes and needs of growing girls.

She thought with hot impatience of her father's coat—how green it had looked in yesterday's blaze of sunlight! How green it would look in the sunlight of how many to-morrows! It was not right; it was not fair. She had a fierce impulse to hide him away from others and himself; to lighten his path with the success her love and ambition craved. He spent himself freely on those who gave not again. He threw his love, his learning, his very life into a battle which was not to the strong. Margaret laid down the scarcely touched sewing. The offer of assistance trembled on her lips. But before she had time to speak, a knock sounded.

Margaret knew that knock—hurried, anxious, impatient, that would not be denied. The old door had echoed to many scores of just such knocks.

"O dear!" she said. Her father started as soon as she. Knocks like that, the call to arms of the physician, sounded through his deepest slumbers. He was transformed in the twinkling of an eye. The wearied old man was the alert physician, confident, eager-eyed, the light of battle on his face. Margaret's heart thrilled as she looked at him.

In a moment he was back. He turned to Margaret, half-laughing.

"It's Mrs. Barr's baby—the healthiest little mite. Quite likely it is merely a pin sticking him, but I'll have to go and set her mind at rest."

"But you're so tired. Why don't you let her wait till morning?"

"Why, Margaret! By morning I should have two patients on my hands. You don't know these young mothers."

"I know they haven't much consideration."

"Now, Margaret, that isn't like you. How can we expect her to think of anything but her little sick child?" As he talked the physician had been throwing things in a little black bag. He shut it now with a sharp click.

"It's quite probable there's nothing much the matter with the baby. If not, I'll be back to-night. If I should be detained, though, I may have to take the train instead of coming home."

"I thought the convention was next week."

"It is, but I'm leaving two days ahead of time. There's a case Parker wants to talk over with me."

Margaret flushed with pride at the honor so simply stated. After all, there were some who appreciated him. "But what about the bills you were going to make out, father? You see, the girls' winter things have to come, and—"

"Jack's shoes, and Robert's, and—I know them all, my little troubled Martha, but I can't delay to-night."

"Could I make them out? Even a day makes a difference."

"Why, to be sure you could. It would be a help to me."

He picked up the book, and rapidly turned the pages, marking here and there with a cross. He passed the book to Margaret.

"Get out these I have marked, like a good girl, Margaret, and you'll soon have in what you need."

Then, with a hasty good-by, he was gone.

In the morning he had not returned, and Margaret sat long with the little leather-covered book in her hand, idly turning the pages. The places marked with a cross were not many. She had counted and recounted the ones which were reasonably sure to pay. The sum total was pitifully inadequate. Even if every one he had marked paid in full and at once, there was an alarming deficit. There was nothing she could do.

But suddenly, as that thought came to her puzzled brain, another followed. There was something she could do—something that would set things straight for the present and leave a little margin for the encroaching future. In a moment the impotent leather-covered book had assumed the proportions of the purse of Fortunatus. There were dozens and dozens of visits with no check after them. Her father had not intended to send them out, but if she did, and the reluctant bills were safely paid, who could be anything but glad about it?

Once decided, she wrote rapidly in her large, firm hand, so different from her father's. The table was soon littered with bills. On those of longest standing she wrote, "Please remit." When the rural postman arrived, she had a load for him. And then she waited.

The waiting was not long. That evening there came a timid, hesitating knock on the door where a peremptory summons so often sounded. Margaret threw it wide. For a moment she did not know the woman who stood before her, a shawl thrown over her head. But she knew the voice.

"It's Mrs. Halloran, Miss Margaret, my dear. I've brought the money. Tell me, is it sick the doctor is?"

"Why, no. Father is quite well, but—"

"Is it yer mother worse, thim?"

"No," answered Margaret. "What made you think so?"

"Won't ye tell me what's wrong, my dear?" persisted the woman. "Sure."

THERE WAS AN ALARMING DEFICIT.

I knowed there was a somethin' whin it came, the bill marked 'Please remit.' My Dannie read it to me. Says I, 'He's in trouble, the little doctor.' Thim out I goes an' sells the cow. An' here's the money, Miss Margaret, thirty-five dollars. It leaves five owin', but Dannie'll soon raise that, an' I'll run up wid it. If 'twar thirty-five hundred I'd not begrudge it fur what he's done for me."

She undid the knots in an old bandanna handkerchief, and brought to light the pieces of shining gold. Her face, seamed and marked by care, her work-worn hands, appealed to Margaret. She spoke impulsively, putting the gold back in the old handkerchief.

"Mrs. Halloran, I want you to take this money and buy your cow again. The need is not so pressing—a way has come since that bill was sent that makes it unnecessary for us to take it."

The relief was plain on the woman's face. She protested, but feebly, while her old hand hovered over the coin. It is not lightly that one relinquishes the means of livelihood. She patted Margaret's hand.

"Ye're yer father's own daughter, my dear. I couldn't speak a finer word about ye. He's a good man—the best I ever knowed; that merciful to the poor, ye wouldn't believe. He'd be doin' much better in a better neighborhood. But the blessin' of the poor—I think that goes for somethin'."

Margaret razed her air-castles of uncertain foundations to the ground. In the morning, after she had made her mother comfortable and sent the children to school, she took the old horse and cart and started out on her round of visits. And just as the angel once spared the houses marked, so Margaret dealt mercifully with the ones which were not. She collected the disturbing little slips of paper, reading a lesson in many a poverty-stricken place. In some the money was ready, in some it was not, but no one had blamed the doctor.

Margaret was glad of that. To each she gave the same excuse—the bills had been sent by mistake. She did not feel the words an untruth. She sighed as she drove homeward. So far things had turned out well, but the hardest part was to come. It would be difficult to explain to her father, to feel his disappointment in her. Yet inconsistently, she longed for his return.

She drove to the station to meet him. All the way home she pondered how to tell him, while they talked of trivial things. Just a question, "Any of my patients been up, Margaret?"

And then it was out. Blunderingly, stumblingly, spurring not herself, making no excuses, Margaret told her tale, hardly daring to meet her father's eyes.

He did not speak for a moment. When he did, it was very tenderly, "My little girl!"—Youth's Companion.

INFANT MORTALITY.

Greater Number of Births as Well as Deaths Among Poor.

An investigation just made by the New York milk committee with a view to getting definite information as to the effects of infant mortality on social and economic conditions has resulted in some interesting disclosures. Three sections of the city were selected for study, varying much in size owing to different densities of population, but each containing about 7,500 persons. In the first, inhabited largely by the rich, only thirty-seven children were born in a year; in the second, where the circumstances of the people were what is called comfortable, the births numbered 160, while in the third, where poverty prevailed, 434 babies were born.

But during two summer weeks, one of them the hottest of the year, not one of the thirty-seven babies or of the 160 died, while among the 434 there were sixteen deaths. The figures are not large enough to warrant any final conclusions as to percentages, but doubtless they are fairly characteristic of the three classes. The immunity of the babies in the two more fortunate classes during this hot fortnight only happened to be complete, and that peculiarly would not be likely to be repeated.

That the one group did as well as the other is explained by the investigators as due to equally efficient care in both, in the one case, however, largely the care of highly trained nurses, and in the second to that of mothers with leisure and intelligence. Among the very poor each of the much more numerous babies had a decidedly smaller chance of life, but many more than enough of them survived to outnumber the other groups. Probably at the attainment of adult age the difference will not be nearly as large, for the excess of mortality will remain where it began.—New York Times.

DANGERS OF PATENT LEATHER.

Shiny Shoes Are a Menace to Life and Limb in the City.

It has become a matter of some doubt in the minds of many people whether patent leather shoes should be worn in the streets, the New York Evening Sun says.

Is it safer or is it not? Should we endanger our lives in the distraction of traffic when, by wearing slightly less shiny shoes, we could give our attention to dodging automobiles and ducking street cars? No child should be allowed out alone in patent-leather shoes—that is decided without a moment's doubt; but even people of mature years are not quite responsible for their own safety when wearing patent-leather shoes.

They cannot be, no matter what their strength of character. If one's shoes will shine, so one must watch them, and if one walks with one's eyes riveted on one's flashing feet, one of necessity bumps into something, and it is nothing less than cold luck if the something is a lamp-post or a postman instead of a flying fire engine. And then one's progress is so slow. Absorbed, captivated, held spellbound by one's own boot tips, one is so very apt to arrive late at the place one was going to or forget completely one's destination and sinking on to a park bench wave one's feet slowly about, bewitched by their sparkling high lights.

Holland has most wisely and kindly opened up a wide thoroughfare for those persons who prefer roller skates to other modes of conveyance, and as nothing more than a humane precaution the city ought to set aside one street for those incorrigible venturesome people who will wear patent leather boots in public.

DOLLARLESS DOLLIVAR.

Policeman's Concern for Senator's Welfare When He Was a Lad.

The son of a Methodist minister, Senator Dolliver entered early upon a political career; he had the old-fashioned way of using anecdotes to illustrate his points, which was then considered effective, though he may have changed his style with the times. He is one of the orators who frankly admit that they "like to talk," a taste he thinks he may have inherited from his father and grandfather—the latter a Massachusetts sea-faring man, whose cargo of cotton during the war of 1812 was confiscated by General Jackson; if he had his grandson's eloquence it is probable that he made some remarks that would have been worthy of preservation. When preaching on a large circuit in Virginia, and often riding 200 miles in a week, Mr. Dolliver's father met the lady who became his wife, and that is the reason that the Senator hails from West Virginia, and was educated at the state university there.

After his graduation at the age of 17 the young man decided to migrate to Illinois, says the National Magazine. He tells thus of this first western visit:

"Standing in the railway station of Columbus, O., a policeman tapped me on the shoulder and with a warning glance said:

"You have just been talking, my boy, with one of the most dangerous pickpockets in the United States."

"One of the most dangerous pickpockets in the United States has just been talking to a country boy who has not a red cent to his name," was my reply."

It is remarkable that, while wireless telegraphy has made rapid strides, very important considerations have been almost entirely neglected. Much attention has been paid to attunement and selectivity and also to the refinement of instruments, while the development of the antenna has been slow. At the receiving station particularly not much has been done toward locating the antenna wires so as to intercept a maximum of wave energy. Aside from Braun's fan-shaped grid, which marked an epoch, very little along this line has been extensively adopted in practice.

The Chinese censorship is a curious institution. Its Chinese name is Yu-shih, or Imperial Recorder, and officials of that name are known to have existed in the Chou dynasty (1122-255 B. C.), but were then recorders pure and simple rather than censors. Since 255-207 B. C. they have been in full enjoyment of their rights as censors. They are called the "eyes and ears of the emperor." They are privileged to criticize the doings of the emperor himself; hence their recent anger at degradation for zeal of one of their number by Prince Ching. —Shanghai correspondence of the London Times.

So far Professor Rampoldi has had about twenty successes, and a fair proportion of failures, the latter, however, being confined to cases of tumor of the tongue, lips or throat, of which only half yielded to the treatment.

HOW WORLD GREETED GRANT.

Homage Shown to the Great Soldier Everywhere Was Unparalleled.

In the free city of Hamburg the senate especially honored Grant, the Bookman says; the king of Sweden pressed invitations upon him to visit his majesty at the superb palace of Drottningholm. In Russia the general was received by the prime minister and an imperial yacht was placed at his disposal, while royal salutes were fired whenever he appeared. A grand audience was arranged for the ex-president by the Emperor Alexander in St. Petersburg. A like function was arranged for him in Vienna by the Emperor Francis Joseph. King Alfonso (father of the present king) gave him a truly Spanish welcome in Madrid; and when General Grant reached Lisbon, the king of Portugal, putting aside all etiquette, came to meet him. The two had many other meetings, punctuated with receptions and banquets.

From Europe and Africa, the general proceeded to India, where he was entertained by the viceroy and by countless maharajahs. In Siam, the king eagerly invited him to the palace, where a state dinner was given and the royal elephants were displayed. In China, almost more than anywhere else, was he the recipient of extraordinary honors from viceroys, princes and statesmen, including Li Hung Chang; while in Japan the imperial cabinet and the emperor met him and gave him a sight of a military review at a time when few people were aware of Japan's growing power in war. The most picturesque festivals and popular fetes crowded his days in Tokyo, where the emperor at the imperial palace gave him a personal farewell. Thence the general returned across the Pacific to San Francisco, where all California seemed to have assembled in his honor.

HOW HE LOST IT.

The story of Mr. Briggs and the key which he wanted to lose sounds like a true story, except in the unnatural persistence of the key in not allowing itself to get lost. The key in question, says a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger, was a long-shanked affair which Mr. Briggs had had no use for since he left Butte, Mont., three years before. As the house, the front door of which it fitted, had been torn down, there seemed no reason for keeping the key on his ring. So he took it off, tossed it into the waste basket, closed his desk and went home from the office.

The next morning he found the key beside his desk, apparently slipped through the mail slot by the woman who cleans the offices.

Mr. Briggs threw it into the basket again.

The following morning it was once more on his desk.

He looked out the window—and then remembered that his lease forbade casting things out. Also, he reflected that a key that size dropped from the twentieth floor would doubtless brain somebody.

He placed the key in the basket again, with a note attached explaining that he wanted to throw it away. But the janitress was German and could not read English. The key reappeared.

Out in the corridor was a large box devoted to the reception of refuse. Mr. Briggs put the key in that. The man came to empty it, found the key, consulted the janitress, and the key was in its usual place the next morning.

Mr. Briggs suppressed what he contemplated saying, took the key, entered the elevator, descended to the street floor, walked to the curb, and furtively dropped the key in the gutter.

A newsboy, noting the gleam of something metallic in the gutter, picked up the key two minutes later.

He repaired with it to the lobby of the office building, on the chance of reward, and asked the hallman about it. That person examined the key, found "Butte, Mont.," cut into the shank, and said:

"There's a feller up in 2023 from Butte. Maybe it's his."

It was. Mr. Briggs was almost inarticulate, but he thanked the boy, and gave him his largest besides. What he said when the boy departed is not part of this story.

Mr. Briggs walked out to the middle span of the nearest bridge and hung the key far out into the air. He came back, pleased with his work, and discovered that he had thrown away the key to his wood shed. That also happened to be loose in his pocket. The Butte key was still there.

That was Wednesday. Thursday he felt in his pockets, as he walked along the street, and missed the key. He almost fainted for joy. He told his wife about it, and she, too, was happy. Briggs explained to her that he himself was going to lose that key, just as an experiment, or perish in the attempt, and to find it gone without effort was an unimaginable rapture. It was not only unimaginable; it was premature. Mrs. Briggs found the key in the lining of the coat two days later.

He Did His Best.

Mr. Raymond appeared at his neighbor's door one November evening at dusk in a towering rage, and uttering fierce threats against his neighbor's dog Nero. Vainly the neighbor tried to explain that Nero was only a puppy. "He belongs to Johnny," he went on, "and it would break Johnny's heart if anything happened to him. I think," hopefully, "that his manners will improve."

"Manners!" repeated Raymond. "I'm not complaining of his manners, but his nature. After he had jumped all over me he bit the back of my leg."

"That's as far as he can reach," broke in Johnny, in a wounded tone. "You don't expect a little pup like him to bite a big man like you on the neck, do you, Mr. Raymond?"

Curing Coleridge

The English schoolmaster of long ago preferred spoiling the rod to spoiling the boy. When Samuel Taylor Coleridge was about 13 he went to a shoemaker and begged him to take him as an apprentice. The shoemaker, being an honest man, returned with the boy to Bowyer, his master, who got into a great rage, knocked Coleridge down and turned the shoemaker out of the grounds.

"Why have you made such a fool of yourself?" he then demanded.

"I have a great desire to be a shoemaker," Coleridge replied, "and I hate the thought of being a clergyman."

"Why so?" asked the master.

"Because, to tell you the truth, sir," said the boy, "I am an infidel."

For this, without more ado, Bowyer flogged Coleridge—wisely, as he afterward thought; soundly, as he knew at the time.

"It was my one flogging, and it was just," Coleridge afterward owned. "Any arguing or sermonizing would have gratified my vanity and confirmed me in my absurd views; as it was, all my infidelity was thrashed out of me, and I got heartily laughed at besides."

His Qualification.

HARD ON CHILDREN

When Teacher Has Coffee Habit.

"Best is best, and best will ever live." When a person feels this way about Postum they are glad to give testimony for the benefit of others.

A school teacher down in Miss. says: "I had been a coffee drinker since my childhood, and the last few years it had injured me seriously."

"One cup of coffee taken at breakfast would cause me to become so nervous that I could scarcely go through with the day's duties, and this nervousness was often accompanied by deep depression of spirits and heart palpitation."

"I am a teacher by profession, and when under the influence of coffee had to struggle against crossness when in the school room."

"When talking this over with my physician, he suggested that I try Postum, so I purchased a package and made it carefully according to directions; found it excellent of flavor and nourishing."

"In a short time I noticed very gratifying effects. My nervousness disappeared, I was not irritated by my pupils, life seemed full of sunshine, and my heart troubled me no longer."

"I attribute my change in health and spirits to Postum alone."

A "BUSINESS TRAINING."

German Method of Education Makes Keen Students of Boys.

No one will deny the fact that Germans are among the keenest business men in the world. And undoubtedly one of the secrets of their success lies in the fact that in German schools they teach boys the practical details of business. The writer recently returned from Hamburg after a year's course of education, and an outline of the system of training boys in business may be interesting, says an article in the Detroit Free Press.

On my first day's attendance, the writer says, I was handed a time table on which appeared, set out in formidable array, such subjects as commercial correspondence, laws of bills of exchange, currency, political economy and commercial law, none of which at the time conveyed much to me, and raised serious doubts in my mind as to whether I should be able to understand and appreciate what appeared to be most abstruse subjects.

At 9 a. m. sharp on the following day the course began, prefaced by a couple of hours' hard study, for the Germans are gluttons to work, and think nothing of a twelve-hour day. The first course was called "business training." We worked in two spacious rooms furnished as offices, each room representing a different business house. These two firms carried on an imaginary trade with each other, and the routine adhered to was modeled exactly on the lines of a first-class business establishment.

Each firm had a director, and these two were the most eminent students in the academy. They had subject to their management and control a complete staff of correspondents, shorthand writers, typists, bookkeepers, etc. The whole was supervised by a master, to whom reference was made in case of dispute or difficulty.

On making my appearance I was informed that my services were in request as an office boy. I was somewhat taken aback, not to say a little humiliated, by the lowly position assigned to me, and I gave the master to understand that I considered I was qualified to occupy a much better post than that which he had chosen for me. He did not seem in the least perturbed by my remarks, but said: "You have already made a mistake—a mistake of diplomacy. One of the great maxims of business as taught here is to do what you are told, to do it at once, and do it well."

With that he handed me a pile of envelopes and a long list of addresses and told me to set to work addressing them. I did so, but not with a very good grace, the master coming round from time to time to inspect my work. For two solid hours I plodded on until 11 a. m., when the course came to an end. Then I took the opportunity of going up to the master again and asking him if he did not really think I had been wasting my time in what I had been doing.

"Not in the least," said he. "In everything, no matter how simple or how difficult, there is always a good deal to learn. If you have paid attention while you were working you will have learned something about the geography of the German empire, for each address contains the name of some important town and province in which it is situated, and the name of some firm celebrated for some particular class of goods."

This gave me food for reflection. As a matter of fact, I had not paid the least attention to what I had been writing; consequently I had failed to derive the benefit which it was the master's intention I should obtain from what seemed to me at the outset a most senseless task. On the following day I resolved to follow out the master's instructions to the letter and I was surprised to find how interesting the work became.

I continued addressing envelopes for two hours a day for a whole week, and the next week I received promotion. In this way I went through the whole routine, from office boy to director, and the experience which I obtained in the various capacities has proved invaluable to me in business.

As director I had to sign checks, dictate letters, enter into agreements with the other firm with reference to the sale and purchase of goods, keep an eye on the money market, work out arbitrage calculations, draw up and indorse bills of exchange and bills of lading, make out periodical statements of affairs, allow or dispute amounts placed to the debit of the firm on account of general average losses, and generally supervise everything.

While we are thus drilled in practical work, the theoretical side of business was not neglected. Lectures were given at fixed hours by professors on banking, currency, bookkeeping and mercantile law. Thus we enjoyed the inestimable advantage of acquiring the theory and practice of business at the same time.

An Unfamiliar Alibi.

There may be nothing in a name, but the American traveler of whom the Living Church tells found at least confusion therein.

He had landed at Liverpool and hastened out of the city to a rural village, where he found a charming old-fashioned inn which delighted his soul.

It was late when he arrived, and when he asked what he could have for supper, the buxom landlady suggested minced collops.

He agreed with enthusiasm, the dish sounded so romantic, so Robin Hoodsy, so almost medieval. And what do you suppose they brought him? Just plain hash!

He is a poor convict who can't afford a watch and chain.

Baby's Scalp All Crusted Over.

"Our little daughter, when three months old, began to break out on the head and we had the best doctors to treat her, but they did not do her any good. They said she had eczema. Her scalp was a solid scale all over. The burning and itching was so severe that she could not rest, day or night. We had about given up all hopes when we read of the Cuticura Remedies. We at once got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and followed directions carefully. After the first dose of the Cuticura Resolvent, we used the Cuticura Soap freely and applied the Cuticura Ointment. Then she began to improve rapidly and in two weeks the scale came off her head and new hair began to grow. In a very short time she was well. She is now sixteen years of age and a picture of health. We used the Cuticura Remedies about five weeks, regularly, and then we could not tell she had been affected by the disease. We used no other treatments after we found out what the Cuticura Remedies would do for her. J. Fish and Ella M. Fish, Mt. Vernon, Ky., Oct. 12, 1909."

Let the Lights Go Out.

It is a lonely little fishing bay in a corner of the Cornish coast, but it boasts a lighthouse on its queer old quay and also a story concerning it and its ancient keeper. The light was noted to be a little erratic, and so one day to the ancient keeper thereof came an officer of the coast guard. "What is this I hear?" he demanded. "Is it true that your light is never alight after midnight?" "That's right nuff," assented the ancient one equably. "Tis a fact and well known that all the boats be in and safe afore 12 midnight, so I be savin' the lie!" And he looked smiling for approbation.—St. James Gazette.

Only Dead Seeds in Tombs.

Hitherto it has very generally been believed that seeds taken from ancient Egyptian tombs germinate readily when planted to-day. This, however, is declared to be an illusion by many experimenters. It has been proved by some that no seed over 100 years old will germinate. Living seeds as old as 80 years breathe, absorb oxygen, and emit carbonic acid gas, whereas those from ancient tombs do not.

Those seeds, supposedly taken from ancient tombs, which have germinated upon being planted are said to have been adulterated by the natives that sold them, as much fresh seed being added as there was old. The Egyptian Egyptologist, Maspero, says that no seed ever taken by himself from a tomb could be induced to germinate.—Exchange.

WESTERN CANADA

What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a section of land in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has said in an interview: "As an American I am delighted to see the remarkable progress of Western Canada. Our people are flocking across the boundary in thousands, and I have not yet met one who does not say that he had made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is scarcely a community in the Middle or Western States that has not a representative in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta."

ADMINISTRATION IS CHIRKING UP

The Wave of Popular Fancy
Said to Be Turning.

INSURGENCY IS ON THE WANE

At Least That Is the Hope With Which the President's Friends Are Daily Cheering Themselves, and They Are Reported to Be Getting in Right Good Spirits Again—Congress to Adjourn This Week.

Washington, June 21.—The success which the Taft administration has attained in the last week or so in pushing measures through congress and bringing the solid Republican force behind the administration bills is being reflected in reports which are coming in from all parts of the United States of the growth of the president's popularity. Congressmen from the west, that only a few weeks ago were bitter in their talk of Taft, have been getting letters which indicate that the passage of the railroad bill has done much to reinstale the president in the good graces of the west. The growing impression that Mr. Roosevelt is satisfied with Mr. Taft and will come out strongly in his support is helping to clear the situation in the west, and Taft's friends here are in good spirits now. They think that insurgency is on the wane and that when the present congress finishes its work Mr.
Taft's hard-earned victory will be recognized. He himself is pleased with the way congress has responded to his requests, and it is apparent that he is sharing the belief of his friends that there are brighter days ahead for his administration. The railroad and statehood bills have been passed and it is practically certain that the postal bank bill and his conservation bill will be added to the list in a day or two.
These bills make a big showing, but the president does not intend to stop there. He has strong hopes of getting through a campaign publicity bill before adjournment, and also a bill creating an Appalachian forest reserve.
He is, however, directing his efforts chiefly to the campaign publicity bill and to the few small details that remain in regard to the conservation and savings bank bills. A campaign publicity bill has passed the house, and it is planned to take it up in the senate as soon as the remaining two administration bills are out of the way.

Preparations are going on for the adjournment not later than Saturday.
Vice President Sherman expresses the opinion that congress will adjourn by the end of the week.

TAFT AT YALE

The President Will Be Present at Son's Graduation.

Washington, June 21.—The president and Mrs. Taft will close the commencement session tomorrow at Yale, where they will see their eldest son, Robert, graduated. The president and Mrs. Taft left for New Haven today.
From New Haven Mrs. Taft will go to Beverly for the summer, and Charlie and probably Robert will go with her.
The president will come back to Washington, arriving here Thursday morning. He will remain here from then until three or four days after congress adjourns, when he will join his family at Beverly.

Wanted to See It Signed.

New York, June 21.—Many of the men from Arizona and New Mexico who came here to see the homecoming of Teddy, went to Washington to try to get a look in at the signing of the statehood bill passed by congress last Friday.

BIG ROW IS ON IN CHURCH COLLEGE

Trustees of Vanderbilt University to Be Ejected.

DEFIANCE OF CHURCH ALLEGED

Bishop Hendrix Will Be Cited For Trial Before the Elders of the Methodist Church South and the Chancellor of Vanderbilt University Will Be Removed From His Office by the College of Bishops.

Memphis, Tenn., June 21.—Bishop E. R. Hendrix of Kansas City, Mo., will be cited for trial before a committee of twelve elders of the Methodist church south in sixty days. Chancellor J. H. Kirkland of Vanderbilt university will be removed from his office by the college of bishops next month and nineteen members of the board of trustees will be ejected from their trusteeship for insubordination and defiance of the church. A lawsuit will be brought in the federal court at Nashville, Tenn., where Vanderbilt college is located, to enforce the rights of ownership and control of the property by the church south, and to force the present trustees to accept the three trustees elected at the general conference at Asheville, N. C.

This is the situation in regard to the battle that has raged around the college lately. W. K. Vanderbilt, head of the great family that has so liberally endowed the Methodist institution, has openly espoused the cause of the trustees who are in rebellion against the church's authority and has written Chancellor Kirkland a letter in which he says that he has always understood that the trustees was a self-perpetuating body and the Methodist church did not own or control the college.

Bishop Hendrix is the president of the board. At the recent conference the church went on record by practically a unanimous vote as holding that the college belongs in fee simple to the Methodists of the south and instructed the college of bishops, of which Bishop Hendrix is a member, to take all legal steps to enforce this claim, and the rights of the church in the college. When the board of trustees met recently it rejected three trustees that the church had elected to fill vacancies and tabled a resolution that they avoided affirmed the ownership of the church. Bishop Hendrix was with the majority in both votes, and this constitutes the sum and substance of his offending.

GAVE HIMSELF UP

"Bloody Breathitt" to the Fore Again
With a Double Killing.

Jackson, Ky., June 21.—Asbury Spicer, a well-to-do farmer of Breathitt county and once a prominent figure in the Hargis feud, shot and killed Asbury Fugate, a tenant on Spicer's farm, and Mrs. Demie Johnson, and wounded Fugate's mother.

The killing occurred in the country, and the first known of it was when Spicer telephoned that he had killed Fugate and shot his mother and was coming to Jackson to give himself up.
Spicer telephoned to Sheriff Hudson that he would surrender, but the latter left at once for Jetts creek, the scene of the tragedy.

It is reported that Mrs. Fugate will recover. Mrs. Johnson was a member of the Fugate household. Mrs. Fugate was wounded when she tried to defend her son from Spicer. The slayer was one of those accused of the murder of Dr. Cox.

A TEMPERATE MAN

Reflection From Paris on Kaiser's Habits Indignantly Denied.

Berlin, June 21.—The nation has felt the most serious doubt and anxiety concerning the kaiser's condition, and in spite of the reassuring reports there is still some uneasiness. Much indignation is expressed by the papers of the city over a suggestion which came from Dr. Doyan of Paris that the kaiser's ailments are due to alcoholism. To meet this a statement has been printed describing the kaiser's temperate habits and asserting that for the last three years he has been almost a teetotaler. His favorite drinks are lemonade and orangeade, while at banquets he has a specially prepared drink which resembles champagne in appearance, but which is nonalcoholic.

"Nothing to Say."—Jim Paten.
Chicago, June 21.—James A. Patten has returned from New York, where he was a center of interest as a result of his indictment in connection with the cotton pool which he conducted with several other big cotton traders.
He talked of wheat and corn, but not cotton. "I am not giving interviews on the subject of cotton, and there is no use pressing the matter," said he.

Baptists Hold Convention.
Muncie, Ind., June 21.—The annual state convention of Baptist Sunday schools and of the Baptist Young People's Union is being held in the Walnut Street Baptist church here. A number of prominent church workers are present and nearly every Baptist Sunday school in the state is represented.

EIGHTH GRADE CLASSICS.

Superintendent Aley Prepares Tentative List of State's Schools.

Robert J. Aley, state superintendent of public instruction, has made up a tentative list of classics to be used for reading in the eighth grade of the public schools throughout the state.
This action followed the discussion of the eighth grade English work by the county superintendents at their annual meeting in Indianapolis this week. There has been no regular adopted course in reading for the eighth grade, and the county superintendents decided that the department of public instruction should name nine selections for critical study in the eighth grade, and that the bi-monthly and diploma examination questions will be made on these selections and will be uniform for the entire state.
As far as possible these selections will be made from the books that are already in general use. A few selections not found in these books may be obtained in the 3 or 5-cent classics.
The tentative list prepared by Mr.
Aley, but in which some changes may yet be made, is as follows: "Visions of Sir Launfal," "Snow Bound," "Great Stone Face," "Legend of Sleepy Hollow," "Evangeline," "Merchant of Venice," "Enoch Arden,"
"King of Golden River" and "Horotius at the Bridge."

Stomach Troubles.

Many remarkable cures of stomach troubles have been effected by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.
A man who had spent over two thousand dollars for medicine and treatment was cured by a few boxes of these tablets. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at all dealers.

Master Hubert Ogdon, son of Dore Ogdon, of Columbus, who is well known in this city, will make a 1000 mile drive for the Hudson Motor Company of Detroit in one of their large touring cars. Master Hubert is but ten years of age, but is well acquainted with the mechanism of an automobile. His father built a small machine for him when he was four years of age, and the picture of the boy with his machine was published in many papers and magazines throughout the United States and foreign countries.
The boy will have charge of the car,
although there will be five passengers with him.

"It cured me," or "It saved the life of my child," are the expressions you hear every day about Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.
This is true the world over where this valuable remedy has been introduced.
No other medicine in use for diarrhea or bowel complaints has received such general approval. The secret of the success of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is that it cures. Sold by all dealers.

Parents know how children abhor bad tasting medicine. Youngsters not only need not be coaxed to take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, but they really like it, it's so sweet and nicely and is now able to walk about with only the assistance of a cane.

Only good remedies are imitated.
That's why Hollister's Rocky Moun-

In Floral, Ark., Lives a Lady Who Feels That Her Strength Was Restored by Cardui.

Floral, Ark.—"I must speak a good word for Cardui," writes Mrs. Viola Baker, of this place.

"About a month ago I was in very bad health. I was so weak and nervous that I was not able to do my housework."

"My husband bought me one bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic. I took it according to directions and now I am in good health."

"I think Cardui is a fine tonic for weak women."

And you are not the only lady who thinks so, Mrs. Baker.
